Dewees-Wood Mill to Open as a Non-Union Plant.

Earnest Conference in Office of Shaffer-Weather's Part in Strike ..

BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.1 PITTSBURGH (Pa.) July 26.—The National Tube Works Company at McKeesport made an unexpected move intended to checkmate the Amalgamated Association. The skilled workmen have been asked to sign individual contracts to practically. sign individual contracts to practically sign individual contracts to practically repudiate any labor union and they have been given but a short time to think it over. It is understood that should they not sign the contracts, they will find their positions vacant. It transpired today that late Thursday evening 600 welders of the mills were paid off and then taken into the office of the general superintendent, where they were presented with individual contracts to be signed for at least a year. Some demurred, while others signed the contracts.

This movement, fighting fire with fire, carried consternation into the fire, carried consternation into the ranks of the strikers. The welders are highly-skilled workmen, and without their coöperation the big plant will be closed down. With them in line, the plant will probably keep on running as though nothing had happened. It was intimated tonight by friends of the welders that they would all sign the contracts.

Company would start the Dewees-Wood mill in McKeesport as a non-union plant Monday reached the head-quarters of the Amalgamated Associa-tion early today. The news was re-ceived in silence. That the movement would not be permitted to be made without a decided attempt to check it was subsequently shown by the long and earnest conference that took place during the afternoon in Presi-dent Shaffer's office.

Amalgamated Association. The feeling of the leading officials of the trust is that the strike will not last long after the summer weather is passed. That this is the belief is indicated by the little effort that the company is making to force their mills into operation. If the officials of the United States Steel Corporation seriously believed that the strike was going to be a long one, they would undoubtedly have made some organized movement for breaking the strike before this. It was reported on good authority from McKeesport late tonight that the employes of the Boston Rolling Mill at McKeesport, both plants of the National Tube Company would come out tomorrow. For the past several days the men have been quietly organizing. It was rumored in Mcseveral days the men have been quiet-ly organizing. It was rumored in Mc-Keesport tonight that if the Boston plant and the National Rolling Mill come out the entire plant of the Na-tional Tube Company will fellow their lead and come ont. The plant employa 8000 men.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT.

STEIKE BREAKER AT WORK.

(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—AM.)

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—McKeesport was again the center of interest in the great steel strike today. Intense excitement prevailed there over the fact that many guards have been sent into the Demmier tin-plate mills, and the report that arrangements had been completed to start the works with nonunion men Monday. Percy Donner, manager of the Monnesen plant, known as a successful strike breaker, was in consultation with the Demmier people yesterday, and it was said that he was to take charge of the mill. Rev. Stuart Sharp hurried to this city to beg the tin-plate company officials not to attempt to start the mills, as bloodshed would surely follow.

The situation at the Dewees-Wood plant also became more interesting when, this morning the management announced an intention to start the plant as non-union within a very few days. Manager Cooper, after a conference with the head officials of the company in Pittsburgh, made a statement partly inreply to the edict issued by Mayor Black of McKeesport. Wednesday, that the company would get no assistance from the McKeesport police department, should they decide to start the plant. Cooper said:

get no assistance from the Mackeesport police department, should they decide to start the plant. Cooper said: "We are going to start up within the next few days, and we will look to the authorities of McKeesport for assistance. Should our men be interfered with, we will insist upon the police of McKeesport doing their duty. If Mayor Black would carry out the lines he has laid down in his statement, we will sue him and the city of McKeesport, for the Dewees-Wood people are heavy taxpayers in the city and must be protected."

Cooper intimated quite strongly that the mills would be run strictly non-union, and that no Amalgamated Asso-ciation people would hereafter be em-ployed in the Dewecs-Wood plant. He said he has been given to understand that the Demmler plant would also be that the Demmler plant would also be opened at the same time, and added: "I understand that the National Tube Works men will be called out tomorrow. I cannot help this; "Ill bour mill."

Last night the Wood plant was almost deserted by the strikers pickets, who left their posts and went to Demmler's. Another report that excited the men today was to the effect that the company had sent a man or several men to Winchester, Va., to employ negroes. The belief that they will be brought to McKeesport to break the strike has caused considerable uneasi-was subsequently shown by the long and carnest conference that took place during the afternoon in President Shaffer's office.

As viewed by manufacturers not interested directly with the strike, the situation was summed up today in this way:

The sirike is not affecting the Unked States Steel Corporation as seriously as was expected by the Amalgamated Association. The feeling of the leading officials of the trust is that the strike will not last long after the summer weather is passed.

While the department relies upon the discretion of the court to make this examination into this matter full and complete, as required by the officer at whose instance it is convened, the report should show the conclusions reached upon certain points to which attention is specifically directed, as the will not be officially notified of his collows:

Seven Thousand People Give Him Royal Greeting.

Yacht Club Fleet's Run-Good Words from Britisher-

Ball and Races. C LEVELAND. July 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] All trotting records were smashed today, indeed, thoroughly demolished, by the phenomenal mile of Creaceus. Even his owner, proud as he is of his charge, and confident as he was that he would surpass living trotters, was dazed by the stallion's superb exhibition. A mile in 2:02% was little less than marvelous. Heavy showers in the morning gave the Glenville track such a soaking that it did not look for a while as if the programme could be gone on with, to say nothing of record-breaking time. The track dried quickly, however, and when the first heat was called, about 2:30 o'clock, it was in fair condition and improving rapidly. But even at 6:20 o'clock, when the great stallion was started on his history-making trip, there were many soft spots up the back stretch.

When the track was cleared for Cresceus's effort, which was announced as a trial against the stallion record of 2:04, held by the son of Robert McGresor, only a few of the Conspectators looked for a mile better than 2:06, in fact, the announcer made advance excuses far possible faiture. Grescous was accompanied by the runners, one to carry him to the half, where the other picked him up and prompted him through the stretch.

After two scores, Driver Ketcham nodded for the word and the champion was off on his imperial way. From the start he seemed to appreciate what was expected of him. ate what was expected of him. He tore away from the wire with a speed and energy that seemed to defy any possibility of defeat. Down to and around the turn he seemed scarcely to. touch the ground, so rapidly and easily was he traveling. As he passed the first quarter in 30 seconds the cry went up: "He can't carry this clip—he will surely come back."

How nttle the crowd appreciated the grand chestnut. On to the half in 1:01, turning the second quarter in 31 sec-ketcham and the patter of flying hoofs behind, the wonderful stallion came on as steady as ever a horse could go, dashing under the wire with no sign of faltering, in 2:02%, thus trotting the last quarter in 31 seconds, It was nothing less than a howling mob that greeted Ketcham and the new trotting king as they came to the stand. For ten minutes a perfect pan-demonlum reigned. Ketcham was almost dragged from his sulky and forced into the stand, where the crowd demanded that he should make a speech, which he did.

Kansas Got Soaked and Feels Much Better.

Omaha Prayed for Rain-Plenty of Rain and Too Much Wind in Kansas.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The past twenty-four hours probably have been the most favorable to the States of the corn beit since the existing hot wave began nearly forty days ago. Rains, generally light in amount, have fallen in Western Kansas, Western Nebraska, Southwestern Missouri, Central Iowa, Arkansas and a little in Oklahorna, and the prospects seem to be favorable for a continuation tomorrow for numerous showers in the diana. Still there has been no general rain, of which the crops stand in so much need, and there are no immediate prospects of any. On the whole, the Weather Bureau officials here regard the situation as comewhat improved. Incidental to the rains, the temperatures officially reported today were somewhat lower than yesferday. However, they ranged from $2 to 100 in the corn belt. Conditions will remain practically the same in the drought section during Saturday and Sunday, and the weather will continue very hot, with the possibility of relief from scattered thunderstorms.

In the Dakotas and Montana there has not been any rain of importance in the past twenty-four hours, but temperatures have been a little lower. There were good heavy rains last night in Wisconsin, in Lower Mitchigan, and in Northern Ohio, and fair rains in New York.

TORNADO IN KANSAS.

BIG RAIN FOLLOWED. KANSAS CITY (Mo.) July 26.—A special to the Star from Hatfield Sedgwick county, Kan., says that a small tornado near there last night destroyed considerable farm property. No one is reported hurt. After the wind ceased one and one-half inches of rain fell in two hours.

defenders, either the Constitution or the Columbia, the New York Yacht Club feet kept right on to Vineyard Haven this morning, leaving at 9 o'clock. At that time the sky was dark and lowering, with a good breeze blowing from the north. A few raindrops were falling and the indications for good weather for the thirty-seven-mile run to Vineyard Haven did not seem particularly propitious.

Again most of the yachtsmen were rather tired after their long and tedious trip from New London, for some of the boats did not get in until long after dark. Still all were on deck this morning bright and early and when Commodore Ledyard holsted signals for getting under way nearly the entire feet answered. Getting out of the harbor was quick work and by 9:30 o'clock most of the racing fleet had left. Outside the wind was from a little east of north, and it looked like a sharp race to Vineyard Haven Sound lightship, with a teat up the Sound to West Chops the finish.

On the way out the yachts encountered a heavy rain squall, and though it soon passed over, it took some of the life out of the breeze, so that at 10 o'clock it was blowing only a little over five knots. The starting gun for sloops was fired at 10:50, the Athens crossing first. The Vigilant and Navahoe, however, miscalculated the time and had to turn brek, wearing together right under the lightship.

Both held off and then came back, the Vigilant crossing on the starboard tack about three minutes after the gun PLENTY OF WATER NOW.

Both held off and then came back, the Visilant crossing on the starboard tack sbout three minutes after the gun was fired. The Navahoe, however, made poor work of it and had to cross with the schooners. The schooners started at 10:55, all getting well up to windward, with the Quizetta over first and the Corona right under her lee.

Then came the Shamrock and Katrina with the Elmina and Loyal last. The Constitution started in tow for Bristol shortly before noon. BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.] LONDON, July 26.—[By Atlantic Cable.] At the final meeting of the congress on tuberculosis held today under the presidency of Lord Derby, resolutions were adopted in favor of egislation toward the suppression of expectoration in public places and rec-ommending the notification of the proper authorities in cases of phthisis, and the use of pocket spittoons, asserting that these sanitary provisions were indispensable in order to diminish tuberculosis.

A resolution was adopted expressing the opinion of the congress that the health officers should continue the efort to prevent the spread of tubercu-osis through milk and meat, and that losis through milk and meat, and that, as doubt concerning human immunity from bovine tuberculosis raised by Dr Koch were of vital importance to the public health and the agricultural interests of the country the government should immediately institute a rigid inquiry into the identity of human and bovine tuberculosis. Other resolutions passed indorsed the educational work of the national societies toward the prevention of tuberculosis and invited lexislation in support of this work. The appointment of a permanent 'international committee to collect evidence, publish literature and recommend means for the prevention of tuberculosis was advocated. The members of the committee are to be named by the various governments from national societies.

Wall Papers for Young.

[Philadelphia Record:] "I always advocate plain wall papers for nurseries and children's bedrooms," said a physician of the new school. "Don't you remember from your own child-hood how prone little children are to see hideous, graning faces and cruel and pursuing forms in the most harmless scrolls and traceries—in a wall paper, say, that has a pattern of roses and rose vines? That is hard on the children—hard on their nerves. I remember, when I was 5, I would lie in bed, and in the faint lampight I would see on the wall a great, gaunt ogre who pursued a little maid, and though I knew that the ogre was really a sunflower, and the little maid a cluster of vine leaves, still this cruel pursuit distressed me. Often I would not sleep for terror and pity. I have traced a number of pervous diseases not sleep for terror and pity. I have traced a number of bervous diseases in little children of the more delicate and imaginative sort to these fancied borrors in the things among which they live. Recently I heard of a woman who went mad from contemplating an imaginary figure of terror in the scrolls of her bureau. Give to every one, but to little children particularly, plain, simple, cheerful things; plain, light papers, furniture that is not heavily nor elaborately carved, and carpets of solid hues. You will find them to be happler and stronger then."

Sampson continued: "Before my departure for Siboney to attend the council. I had received telegraphic orders from the Navy Department informing me of Shafter's complaint, directing me to confer with him, and to see if a mutual understanding could not be arrived at. This order, to the best of my recollection, reiterated the positive order, received once or twice before, that I must not risk any of my vessels on the mine fields before the destruction of the Spanish fleet. I must say that before starting before the destruction of the Spanish feet. I must say that before starting for the council I had consulted with Shafter by proxy, but to no effect. He insisted that I should make a per-sonal examination of his lines, which, sonal examination of his lines, which, he stated, were so attenuated by losses sustained in attack and, by illness that they could no longer be held."

Asked as to whether the blockade instituted by Schley met with his approval. Sampson said: "Now you are touching on a subject which I do not want to discuss. I will say, however,

Such tripped down the walk from the dressing-rooms, attired in a suit that was remarkably short and very fetching, and all the eyes in that vicinity were focused on her. She seemed absolutely fearless, and swam about like a mermald.

Two men on the bank were especially charmed with the diversions of the abbreviated-skirted fairy. They strove hard to attract her attention, and finally she looked full at them and waved her hand. Then she took a header from the springboard, and went far under the water, kicking her legs defiantly as she went beneath the waves.

Those two men nearly had a fit.

"I'm going in." shouted the one, breaking into a run for the bath-house. "So'm I," yelled the other.

The exact fig ures are unimportant. I will repea now what I said before, that the Brook lyn did excellent work in battle. To the best of my recollection I never criticised the Brooklyn, except for her initial movement, a movement which, in my opinion, took her too far to the southward. This, in my opinion, was an error of judgment. I do not wish to say anything more on that subject.

English Straw Hats.

English Straw Hats.

[New York Sun:] The style in straw hats for men has undergone a curious change in recent seasons, and this is observed most strikingly by travelers from London. Seven or eight years ago the straw hats worn in England had narrow brims and a low crown and were generally smaller than any to be had at the New York stores and so had to be imported or made to order. After a while the makers, unable any longer to resist the demands of their customers for hats of this kind, reluctantly began to make the smaller hats, and have ever since continued to manufacture hats made on this general style.

FREAKS OF LIGHTNING.

Medieval Superstitions Concerning Electrical Storms—Instances of Narrow Escapes.

row Escapes.
[Washington Star:] During the Middle Ages in Europe churches were considered as safeguards against devils, and belis were rung as an additional inducement for the evil spirits to keep away. As lightning was supposed to be a satanic manifestation, the belis were rung during severe storms until so many people had been killed by the lightning running down the rope that the practice was finally abandoned. On one occasion, in the town of Chabenli, near Valence, eleven men employed in ringing an enormous beli were struck and seven were instantly kiled.

were struck and seven were instantly kiled.

Arago, the philosopher, tells of the chief of a band of brigands, who, while waiting execution in the courtyard of a prison in Bavaria, was atruck and instantly killed by a flash of lightning. His companions, believing that heaven had singled out their chief for punishment, became so penitent that they were finally pardoned. A prisoner was killed in a house in Massachusetts, the other people in the same apartment with him remaining unharmed. Investigation disclosed the probable cause of his death. It was discovered that a saw was suspended in the attic directly over his head, while in the cellar a crowbar was set against the wall. The lightning struck the roof and thus found a direct passage through the house.

FLASHES TEN MILES LONG. Flammarion, the French scientist, relates some remarkable instances of the freaks of lightning. The flashes, relates some remarkable instances of the freaks of lightning. The flashes, which are sometimes more than ten miles in length, have been known to kill a man, completely consuming his body but leaving him in the exact position which he occupied in life. He states that in 1838 three soldiers at Vicsur-Aisne, France, took refuge from a storm beneath a linden tree. Some time after the storm had passed peasants seeing them standing motionless and not replying to their greeting touched them on the shoulder, when the bodies instantly crumbled to fine ashes. There were no evidences of injury to them, the clothing being intact and their faces wearing a natural appearance. A similar occurrence is said to have taken place July 27, 1691, its truthfulness being vouched for by Pastor Butler, who was an eye-witness. Ten harvesters seeing a storm approach sought refuge under a hedge. During the storm a boil of lightning struck and killed four of them, who remained as if petrified. One of the men was just putting a bit of tobacco in his mouth, another was playing with a little dog which he held with one hand while he fed him with the other. After the stroke they retained these positions, as though they had suddenly been turned into stone.

LIFE-LIKE IN DEATH.

M. Cardan tells how eight harvesters while taking their noonday lunch unind to be imported or made to order. After a while the makers, unable any onger to resist the demands of their customers for hats of this kind, reluciantly began to make the smaller hats, and have ever since continued to manufacture hats made on this general style.

In England the change in men's fashions has brought larger hats into the mode, and the small headgear which is now seen in London on the heads of travelers is everywhere known as the American style. The small hats have, however, gone out of style among the persons most particular about such matters, and, next to the Panama, the large London hat is must in demand. The American hats have in nearly every particular the advantage over those made in England. They are lighter, cooler and generally fit thehead better. It is only a question of the form that sometimes gives a temporary advantage to London hats with modish dressers.

The porters, packers and warehousemen held a separate conference, at which the advisability of going out in sympathy with the teamsters was considered. SAN FRANCISCO COOKS AND WAIT ERS MUST OBEY.

Court Order Makes it Unlawful for Strikers to Resort to Any Methods in Their Efforts to Force Employers to Grant Their Demands.

IBY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M. SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.-Superior Judge Sloss today granted the applica-tion of Mathias Johnson, a restaurant proprietor, for an injunction restraining the Cooks and Waiters' Alliance from picketing men in front of his establishment for the away customers during the present strike.

The injunction, of course, is temporary, pending the hearing of the damage suit brought by Johnson against the Hotel and Restaurant Employers' International Alliance, the Bartenders' International League of America, the from patronising the houses which did not comply with the demands of the union.

President Johnson of the employers' association and proprietor of two restaurants, applied to the courts for an injunction to restrain the strikers from interfering with the conduct of his business. The case was first assigned to Judge Sloss, who rendered the opinion today. The injunction absolutely prohibits the strikers from persuading or inducing persons in the employ of the plaintiff to leave his employ, from seeking to prevent other persons dealing with the plaintiff and from the use of the word "unfair" or other defamatory statements, calculated to injure the business of the plaintiff.

In his opinion Judge Sloss says:

"Struggles between employers and employés have in recent years given rise to a considerable number of decisions by English and American courts, and while there is a great divergence of authority on some of the questions involved, I take it that others are settled beyond the possibility of dispute. Thus cleaving out of consideration any question of breach of contract,) it is clear that an employe may withdraw from his employment when

of heavy earthquake shocks about 2:20 o'clock this afternoon. The vibrations generally were from north to south, and at one or two points lasted for fully five seconds. So far as learned, no serious damage was done, though the force of the shock was great enough to shake dishes from the shelves. The extent of the earthquake north and south is not known.

At Elko, Nev., the shock was unusually severe. The High School, a big new brick edifice, was badly cracked by the violence of the vibrations, and other buildings were slightly damaged. The earthquake at this point was preceded and followed by rather remarkable meteorological phenomena. For some time preceding the shock the air was perfectly still, while the heat was extremely oppressive.

A few minutes after the shock, however, a violent wind and rainstorm, accompanied by heavy thunder and lightning, burst over the city, the rain continuing for several hours. At Deeth, Nev., goods were shaken from the shelves of the stores. The shock was not felt fifty miles north of Elko.

HONOLULU, (T. H.) July 19.—
[A. P. Correspondence: Wired from San Francisco, July 26.] Acting Governor Cooper has signed both of the appropriation bills passed by the Legislature, vetoing but one item, and has issued a proclamation, continuing the special session for fourteen days longer to pass other appropriation bills which he deems necessary. The continuance to just other appropriation bills which he deems necessary. The continuance is very distasteful to the home rulers, who want a general extra session. In both House and Senate this morning, motions were carried to table the maters submitted by the Executive, and a notion to notify the Senate that the House was ready to adjourn sine die vas carried in the House was carried in the House.

The acting Governor, in his message, asked for the passage of a loan bill, and also for a bill to appropriate money for the payment of unpaid bills amounting to about $90,000. A majority of the home rule members are opposed to taking any action at all, as it is thought that if nothing is done now, the Executive will be compelled to call a general extra session within a few months. Then the Legislature will be free to act on the County Government Bill and other measures which it failed to get through in the regular session.

Andrew Carnegie, the steel millionaire and philanthropist, has now before him a letter calling attention to the city of Honolulu as a place in need of a library. On action of the Board of Trustees of the library here, President M. M. Scott recently wrote to Carnegie on the subject. The library here now has about fifteen thousand volumes, and is supported by fees of those who use the books.

TO HAVE ST. LOUIS DISPLAY.

Legislature had approved the bill ap-propriating $15,000 for a Hawailan ex-hibit at the St. Louis fair.

Gill worked hard to secure an appro-priation of $25,000, but so much had been spent at this first session of the Territorial Legislature that the mem-bers concluded the country could not afford more than the smaller sum. With this Hawaii will be able to make a most interesting exhibit, and the a most interesting exhibit, and the general interest in the project shows that many will contribute.

seems to think that the burning ques tion in State politics is the removal of John C. Lynch from his office of Col-lector of Internal Revenue at San session.

Cooper's veto was of an appropiation of $20,000 for a site for a hospital for incurables in Honolulu. He appropriation was illegally made. Both houses concurred in the veto.

The session may come to an end tomorrow morning. The income of the Territory, as estimated for the next two years, is considerably less than the amounts appropriated, and without a wore, is who shall have the swag; but lector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco. Now that is all wrong. The think about, talk about and dream over, is who shall have the swag; but when Calabasas is near home, why should Southern Californians bother their heads about 'Frisco?

"Only one scalp is wanted," says the Express headline—and that is Lynch's Bosh! Lots of scalps are wanted. Editor Gregory needs one. "There are others." Lynch is not the only game worth gunning for. As for Senator Bard, whom the Express connects with this one particular scalplock, he is concerned about other things. He is aiming at bossism and Burnsism and never has given himself up to the distribution of plums. He thinks Lynch should be removed, but it is not the should be removed, but it is not the Senator's sole aim in life to remove him, as the Express would have the public believe. For instance, Senator Bardhas ideas on the Governorship question. Pe said to a Times reporter:

"I believe Senator Filmt is a logical candidate for Governor of the State. His long connection with the legislative branch of California's government has made him thoroughly familiar with the needs here. He is a gool maniand a good Republican.

"Personally, I should be greatly interested in his candidacy, fog I believe he would make an excellent governor."

In view of this expression, the display line of the Express, "Only One Scalp Wanted," would seem to be a hairiess ambiguity—a bald sort of head with less in it than on it. with less in it than on it.

poetry has sprung up as a popular art wherever a race has advanced from savagery to civilization. It is one of the normal products of such a growth. The American people, however, have not on this continent developed from a savagery. We came to this country as a shoot of a highly-civilized race. This insured many advantages, but it involved the 'limitations of a growth which was in its earlier stages essentially provincial. Lowell has told the whole story:

"O strange, new land that yet wast never young."

The United States has had political but never racial youth. The country is in a position not entirely unlike that of the unfortunate children who are so early required to take up the burdens of the adult that they have had no time for any childhood. We have had no folkiore to be the natural material from which poetry should draw its substance. We have made some shift to borrow from Indian tradition to supply the lack, and "Hiawatha" and the Indian legends used by Whittier are the measure of success with which this has been accomplished. We have had no folk-song to furnish the basis for the development of the form of verse, as the folk-songs of Scotland shaped the lays of Burns, or as the ballads of England led the way for so much of the best of her poetry. We have imported our traditions, our poetic forms, our taste, and the protective tariff which nature in such circumstances imposes is well-nigh prohibitive.

AMERICAN LITERATURE AND AMERICAN LIFE,

VI.-POETRY TODAY.

T IS perhaps not proper to begin even the most insufficient discussion of American poetry without the time-honored jest about the chapter which sums up the history of snakes in Ireland by asserting that there are none and assumes that there is no poetry in this country. The jest is something of the moldiest and the assumption is untrue. The poetry of America at the present day is not of the highest grade, but it is not lacking in quantity, and not a little of it has, if somewhat faintly, the genuine flavor.

WHY POETRY DOES NOT FLOUR-

The reasons which have brought about the decline of that love for poetry which was formerly so marked in the English-speaking race have been more than once set forth. To some extent they are common to the whole modern world. The most strenuous enterents of recent thought have turned about to enter college are laboriously drilled to pass examinations upon various masterpieces, a process which in nine cases out of ten makes forever impossible any love or appreciation for these especial poems. I once asked a small boy what he was doing at the primary school which he attended, and LACK OF A LEISURE CLASS. Thus far in the history of civilization art has been appreciated and nourished first by the leisure classes, and from them has filtered downward. Undoubtsmall boy what he was attended, and primary school which he attended, and he replied that he was committing to memory Blake's "Tiger."

"Do you like it?" I asked.

"Oh, we don't have to like it," he responded, with the utmost simplicity.

"We only have to learn it."

Lads fitting for college, unless under very exceptional teachers, do not have to appreciate or enjoy "Macbeth," to appreciate or enjoy "Macbeth,"

first by the leisure classes, and from them has filtered downward. Undoubtedly-some races have always been more readily responsive than others, but even among art-foving people, literature, like the other arts, has been supported and nourished by the wealthy and the cultivated. Conditions in America are unlike those which have obtained elsewhere in that society here has been in reality as well as in theory so generally democratic. It is not easy to see how a vital and well-developed poetry can arise without a leisure class of cultivated persons able and inclined to encourage it. With the local appearance of such a class in New Enigand came the poetry of Longfellow, Whiter, Lowell and Emerson; and had not circumstances prevented this might have been the beginning of greater things. As it is it illustrates the importance of a cultivated audience.

This view may not be very democratic, and we may continue in this country to cherish the dream of a literature springing spontaneously from the people and enthusiastically received cratic, and we may continue in this country to cherish the dream of a literature springing spontaneously from the people and enthusiastically received by the people. This may yet be, but if it comes it will be unique in the history of literature. The vigor and genius of any race is usually found chiefly outside of the ranks of the favored leisure classes; but hitherto, at least, the support and encouragement of the latter has been an essential condition of the best achievement.

The material conditions of life in America have been throughout its history constantly insistent. The taming of the country has been going on strenuously up to our very time, and indeed is still so far from being completed that the best endeavors of the nation have been absorbed in this effort. Herein our situation has been different from any which has existed for centuries in Europe. Without a leisure class and with the constant pressure of the need of the most vigorous exertions of the whole people to conquer the continent, it is not strange that we have not been able to develop poetry as a civilized art in America as it has been nourished in England or on the continent.

poetry as a civilized art in America as it has been nourished in England or on the continent.

today reads anything as literature. Some small minority always will exist like the small remnant of the prophets who were secretly supported by some-body or other in biblical times, but the like the small remnant of the prophets who were secretly supported by somebody or other in biblical times, but the mass of modern students are certainly not literary. They read the newspapers, especially the sporting columns; they amuse themselves more or less with fiction, indifferent, apparently, whether it is good or bad if it is exciting; but so far as it is possible to judge from the outside the modern college boy is neither a reader nor in sympathy with any literary tradition.

Poetry demands an understanding and a love of literature which have gone out of fashion in modern colleges. I may misjudge, but I am not able to imagine the students of today as regarding poetry as one of the important interests of an educated man, as caring for the literary conditions greatly, as longing for the appearance of a new poet, or as going out into the world to help in creating an audience which shall be ready eagerly to welcome one should he arise.

Meanwhile among the mass of the people are a great many writers of verse. Most of it is pretty poor verse, it is true; verse which seems to have been made on a second-hand type-writer. Some of it is mechanically correct enough, but it is too generally of the kind which supplies no evident reason why it should not be prose. The London Athenaeum pronounced E. C. Stedman's recent "Anthology of American verse" "a waste of mediocrity," and no amount of patriotism will allow one to deny that the book would be improved if it were compressed at least a third by the omission of much placid verse which Mr. Stedman has with uncritical good nature included. On the other hand, the anthology contains much which is surprisingly good when one considers the variety and comparative obscurity of the singers. That so many with so small encouragement as is offered by the American reading public have done so well is a sign of no small earnest and poetical zeal.

ONE SIGN OF PROMISE. ONE SIGN OF PROMISE.

A fact which to me is of more promise than all else is an incident which occurred very lately, and from my surprise at which I have not yet recovered. One of the leading railroad men of the country, a man hard-headed and practical and not himself of academic education, declared that he wanted the men who were turned out from technical schools to be taught to appreciate and to enjoy good literature, and that this he regarded os en essential part of a good technical training. If such a view is held by men of this sort it means that the demand for an original literature of high character is not far off. I do not believe for an instant that a majority of our practical men have yet advanced far enough to share such a perception of the place of imaginative literature in intellectual development, but that one so prominent has reached it, if not to be regarded too hopefully as regards the rest, is yet of a good deal of significance. When the men who build our railroads and manage our factories wish for an American literature an American literature will surely come. Fortry is not to be ordered like a cargo of steel rails, but a demand from the energetic, working part of our people will call it into bloom as the sun hine opers the spring flowers. THE LACK OF AN AUDIENCE.

Today, then, America is without any recognized great peet, and without any audience to which he could appeal if he were here. The public can be made to read doggerel, as witness the success of the rhymer who sent the poor old muse hobbling lachrymosely "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse," and it is impossible for the race to outgrow that responsiveness to rhythm which is inseparable from the pulse-beats of humanity. To poetry as an appeal to the imagination, as a noble work of art, in short, the American public is certainly at present unresponsive. Despite those sporadic affectations known as Browning clubs little general attention is paid to poetry, and if a demand is necessary to create a supply there is little hope for a poetical outburst in any immediate future.

No great art is possible without so much of a demand as is fnvolved in the existence of an appreciative audience.

FOUR LETTERS AND

Miss Patricia Douglas to her dearest friend, Miss Nellie Taylor; LONGHURST-ON-THE-SEA.

No great art is possible without so much of a demand as is involved in the existence of an appreciative audience. The poet leads and interprets the thought of his public, but today he has no public. One of the leading musicians of the country said to me last winter: "We try to think that this is a musical time. It is so only through tradition and imitation. If Beethoven's 'Fifth Symphony' were brought out today it would never get to a second hearing. This is, I believe, rather severe upon our time, but we must accept the fact that the age is unaesthetic. That Shakespeare had an audience is evident enough from the fact that his plays made him a fortune, and that other Elizabethan dramatists were equally successful. That Tennyson had an audience from the very first may be seen by any reader of the poet's life, with its accounts of how at Cambridge the students coming up from the long vacations told one another with enthusiasm that Tennyson had written a new poem and hurried to the rooms of the fortunate possessor of a copy to hear it read. What today could a poet do, addressing a public entirely indifferent, for the most part, whether his work be good or bad?

POETRY'S PLACE IN THE SCHOOLS July 13, 1900.

Dear Girlie: To think that just one year ago you and I were having such times here together, and now you are soled by the fact that every one thinks you tremendously clever and good to help your father in his hour of trouble, but I should think, my dear, that business and all that sort of thing would be such a bore to a woman.

Of course, you want to know about everything and everybody. Well, it's the same old place and year.

everything and everybody. Well, it's the same old place and very nearly the same old crowd—particularly the men, who are distressingly few and far between. You remember that stupid little Jimmy Barton we enjoyed snubbing last season? He's quite the go this year. Even the shape of his nose has changed a bit, and he has a perfect love of an automobile. I've had several spins with him already. I'm so glad I bought that red control. eral spins with him already. I'm so glad I bought that red coat. It makes a stunning contrast to his dark green and suit, for the links are in splendid form, and Jack Ferris, the crack golfer, is here. He says my shots are very clever for a woman. I am not sure about the shots, but I know that little frilled sunbonnet is so becoming. And Jack Ferris has eyes for something above golf balls.

I found that out last night, when we sat out two waltzes in the turret corner of the porch. Remember the turret corner, Neil? I thought you would. You've been there often enough, dear knows. I wore my green crepe. It might have been the soft green against my white shoulders, or the moonlight on the water, or the Mexican waltzes the orchestra played, but Jack certainly did lose his head. I was so shocked, for, of course, he knows of my engagement to Ned. But then, men who are perfectly sane in town during the winter season will do such things under a summer moon—especially if the moon goes behind a cidud.

By the way, in his letter today Ned says that he cannot take his vacation this month. I know the dear fellow is so disappointed. He had planned on being here with me, don't you know. Well, be as kind to him, Nell, as you can be, and console him in my absence. You'll find him the best of company on all occasions.

Devotedly. PATTY.

LETTER NO. II. Miss Nellie Tayor to her dearest friend, Miss Patricia Douglas: PLATT BUILDING,

Lads fitting for college, unless under very exceptional teachers, do not have to appreciate or enjoy "Macbeth," "Paradise Lost" or "The Frincess," they have only to be able to pass an examination on them. If a revival of the love of poetry comes ever it will hardly be due to the training in the college requirements.

The lack of an atmosphere in American colleges which shall stimulate and nourish artistic tastes and appreciation is one of the serious elements of the intellectual situation today. Although in the scramble to get fitted for college a boy might miss aesthetic influences, he would be naturally supposed to find them when once he was in. A new "Pilgrim's Progress" might well be written to set forth how the candidate wallows in a veritable slough of despond, and with how desperate a squeeze to escape from questions which are veritable arrows of Beelzebub he gets through the wicket gate of entrance examinations; but at least when once he is on the road to the promised land of knowledge matters should be different. Christian from time to time was heartened with visions of coming glories. College students—to abandon a figurative manner of speech which is rapidly getting to be too much for meshould be stimulated to enjoy good literature; they should be gaining constantly in ability to enter into it, and to rise to the plane of great work. I am forced to say that this is far from being generally the case. friend, Miss Patricia Douglas:

My Dear Patty: Your newsy letter did make me think longingly of old times for a minute or two, but, after all, New York's not half bad in summer. For me it is like looking at a new side of life. The offices during the day are breezy and cool, and at night mother has all sorts of ridicuious surprises concocted for me. She has turned the roof into a miniature summer garden, after the household column of any old ladies' journal.
There are easy chairs, tables, shadowy cosy corners, palms and rubbernecks—no, I mean plants. I am becoming shockingly slangy since I came down on the street. We spend most of our evenings on the roof. Ned has been up several times and we like him. He brings his guitar—you never told me COLLEGES AND LITERARY AT-MOSPHERE. The difficulty is that, so far as I can discover, our colleges have largely ceased to have this literary atmoshe played—and what with his music and my singing the popular songs of the real roof gardens, and mother mixing delicious punch, we imagine we are quite gliddy.

Last evening Ned took mother and me to one of the continuous houses. Such a lark! And tonight we are going to Manhattan Beach. It is great fun after all to feel that you are a part of the great masses, as the politicians put it, and cannot leave town the whole summer long.

Of course I will do my best to console Ned while you are away. But you must remember this is not Longhurst-on-the-Sea. I have only evenings, Saturday afternoons and Sundays at my own disposal. Write me all the news—I do enjoy it, and so does mother.

Yours lovingly.

Dear Mr. Goodfellow: I am sending you today your letters, ring and photographs. I am convinced that our engagement has been a mistake. I have always held that people, to be happlly married, must have congenial tastes; in fact, must be perfect affinities. Clearly, you and I do not come in the above class. You will believe that I am breaking our engagement for your happiness as well as my own. There are so many charming girls, and men are so easily consoled!

Yours sincerely.

FORTUNA GOLD EXHIBITED.

received at the headquarters of the Southwest Miners' Arsociation yesterday. The rock was taken from the bottom of the deepest shaft in the mine, now down a distance of 1509 feet. It carries free-milling gold, and these are said to be fair samples of a large body of the same grade of ore to be found there.

The Fortuna is the property of the well-known California mining man. C. D. Lane, and is said to have produced at the rate of $75,000 per month for the past five years.

MINES TO BE ASSESSED. MINES TO BE ASSESSED.

The Supervisors of Cochise county, Ariz., acting as a board of equalization, are trying to raise the property valuation of the county from about $3,000,000. They propose to do it by bringing the assessment of the mines up to somewhere near the rated valuation of the holdings. Heretofore the mines have been lightly taxed on nothing more than a part of their improvements, with something added on patented claims. On the Copper Queen, at Bisbee, the principal copper producer of Arizona, the raise is $3,000,000 above its former assessment of less than half a million. The Commonwealth mine, at Pearce, reputed to be the best gold producer of the Southwest, has been raised $1,000,000.

ROSEBUD RESUMES.

Operations have been resumed in the Rosebud mine of Northern California. Fending a change of ownership work has moved slowly for the past month, but extensive improvements are now under way. Marcellus L. Smith, the former owner, well known in local mining circles, now has charge of the work as superintendent. The Rosebud is on the Fast Balt seven miles from Fairthe East Belt, seven miles from Fair-play, and due south of Grizzly Fiat.

Department One, Judge Smith's court, after lingering for almost a year.

The names of the two defendants are the Chinese for "John Doe" and "Richard Roe," and they were the two straw men set up by a big Chinese vegetable-growing firm, to test the va-ilidity of the county ordinance, which forbids irrigating vegetables with sewvegetable-growing firm, to test the validity of the county ordinance, which forbids irrigating vegetables with sewage water.

The firm in question has a lease on 100 acres of the D. Freeman property at Gardena, and last fall was discovered to be irrigating an acre of onlons with sewage. The two defendants, Ah Sam and Ah Pie, were put up to answer. Their defense in the Township Court was that the onlons were being raised for seed, and consequently they were not liable under the ordinance. The justice, however, was not to be mocked, and he pronounced judgment against them and fined each $50.

An appeal was taken to the Superior Court, and the decision of Judge Smith has just been announced, sust uning the Township Court.

The decision is an important one, inasmuch as it settles the longmooted question as to whether or not conviction could be had under the county ordinance. Every grower of vegetables has all along steadfastly deciared that he does not use sewage on his vegetable garden for the reason that there is a strong sentiment against it among consumers, but if he was using sewage he felt secure in the belief that he could not be convicted and fined for the offense.

Now, it is different. If convicted in a justice's court he may be sent down into his jeans for a fine of $50, and unless the Supreme Court reverses Judge Smith's decision, which is most unlikely, the fine cannot be escaped. It is improbable that such a case will ever be appealed to the Supreme Court, and consequently the ordinance is just about as effective as it would be were it not as full of loopholes as a fashnet; but it ought to be so amended to be thoroughly protective against every phase of violation.

For instance, you may convict the man who irrigated in the same way; he is liable for so irricating strawberries, but not for cauliflower. There are many other instances of the same way; he is liable for so irricating strawberries, but not for cauliflower. There are many other instances of the same way; he is liable for so irricating strawb because the ordinance was truly drawn.

This case just decided will have a mild influence in stopping the practice among Chinamen, as the word will speedily be passed along the line.

SAN DIEGO, July 26.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Just before the adjournment of the forencon session of the Superior Court today Judge Conklin sentenced Gertrudes Almendares to death by hanging, for the murder of Ceverino Rodrigues, at El Cajon. In pronouncing the sentence the judge said that there do not appear to be any extensition. pear to be any extenuating cleoum-stances, and that the act appears to be due either to the promptings of malice and a wicked heart, or from a desire on the part of the acc man. It is evident that the prisoner to some extent realized the seriousness of the crime from the fact that he turned and fled after committing it. The two Mexicans came together at a dance at El Cajon, Almendares doing the killing with the thrust of a knife through the heart of Rodriguez. It is claimed that the murderer was jealous of Rodrigues, and that he followed him to El Cajon for the purpose of taking his life. His story has been that he acted in self-defense. This afternoon Judge Conklin signed the death warrant, fixing October 4 as the

DICE DINNER TO YOUNG.

The most interesting event of the week in the crusade of the Civic Federation for the suppression of crime was a dinner tendered R. H. Young, secretary, by several men who do not share the same views as Young relative to how some things should be done. Young has been active in the prosecution of gambiers and keepers of lottery joints, and has incurred the bitter enmity of many people. Those alluded to were shaking dice, when it was decided that they should tender Young a dinner. The question of who should tender the invitation was decided by the dice. Young accepted and was on hand at the time and place named.

determined by the aid of the dice box, and the only reason why Young was not asked to shake is that he was the guest. The question of who should respond to the toast, "Our Guest," was decided by the cubes, the honor falling to the lot of Eugene Daney, an attorney who has been counsel for the accused in many of the cases which Young has been prosecuting. His remarks are said to have been appropriate to the occasion, and strikingly different in tone from some that he made when arguing cases in court. It was Daney who, not long since, referred to Young, in argument before the court, as the "High Priest of Morality." But it was different at the banquet. L. A. After all the muddle in the settlement of the T. C. Copeland property, it finally passed into the hands of S. Beller, who is supposed to have been a partner in the former concern. The sign was accordingly changed to read "S. Beller & Co., successors to T. C. Copeland," All was fairly serene up to two days ago when there appeared over the sign an inconspicious but important amendment to the effect, "O. I. Wise as Trustee, Successor to S. Beller & Co." There was consternation in the ranks of the creditors of the cloak house. Suspicion succeeded anser when it developed that Wise is the attorney of Beller and the change in name was the result of a hurried visit of said attorney, who lives at San Francisco, and took place after a still more hurried inventory of the stock.

There was a heavy demand in the market about this time for Mr. Beller, but that discreet individual had joined the ranks of those gone but not forgotten. Inquiry showed he had retired into oblivion at San Francisco and no explanations were forthcoming. Inasmuch as they had not been consulted, it is claimed by the local creditors that the private assignment was for the benefit of certain unknown friends and perferred creditors of Beller. The creditors in general have been notified by Beller that they are to meet August 6th to approve his assignment was for the indicated last night by S. P. Muiford, one of the interested parties. "There isn't any doubt in my mind," said he, "that the creditors will not agree at all to any private assignment and will throw the concern into bankruptey rather than get let out this way. Mr. Fukuzawa, Japan's great commoner, was present when the sketch was made. He secured it, and it has been in his possession ever since. THE CONNECTION.

In most cases idolatrous. Their worldly ambition showed itself in building the tower of Babel. God was determined to preserve one people in whom He could tuiff His promise to give them a redeemer. Of Noah's sons He, chose the line of Shem, and of Shem's descendants, Abraham. He scattered the builders of Babel and confused their speech, in order to separate His chosen line from them, and that was the beginning of the thousands of different languages and dialects. The call of Abraham introduced a new epoch; it also introduced God's new method, "the fencing round of one people till they should learn to know God, and understand and exemptify His government." stand and exemplify His government." He found it necessary to create a separate people and make it their national business to preserve the knowledge of THE LESSON.

"Now the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show

tion, and I will bless them that blessing;

"And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curse thee, and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."

God's reason for selecting a man to found a nation, to whom he could give his oracles, and in whom a redeemer might come, was wise, for that was the only possible way of preparing for the event. His wisdom in selecting Abram is seen in the man and his training. His was a lofty personal character, as the name, Abram, "exalted father," indicates, and good material is required for good work. He had a more moral ancestry, for the noble Terah was his father; he had probably the training of the cultured Chaldeans, for they had a highly-developed civilization, as is shown by the recent discoveries on the site of the city Ur, with the monuments of its former greatness, and by the recent discoveries in Tel-el-Amsana, in Egypt, of the commercial correspondents known and reverenced by many in his life; his name has been honored by his descendants as the synonym of fidelity; he is the spiritual type of all Christ's disciples; his name has been given to the abode of Christ's true disciples—Abraham's bosom.

(5.) He was to have God's constant protection, winning to him the fear and respect of men and punishing those that curse him.

(6.) God was to confer the highest possible honor on him in making him the medium for bearing blessings to all other nations. So God was preparing to bring back blessings to the Chaldeans through the man he was taking from them. He has brought blessings to all nations—in the effect the Jewish nation had on the surrounding nations. to all nations—in the effect the Jewish nation had on the surrounding nations; in the benefit in which the scriptures, the institutions and the laws of the Jews have brought to all nations; most of all in the Savior whom they gave to the world. The knowledge of the one true God was kept alive by Abraham's family and to them all the great nations today are indebted for their truest, most cherished beliefs.

TRUTHS TO IMPRESS.

(1.) That when God wants a man for a mission He never makes a mistake in Mis selection.

(2.) That He never enlists us under false pretenses, but tells us the worst.

(3.) That every noble life begins by turning away from things formerly cherished and choosing better things.

(4.) That "the life of faith is the only one which is always sure of getting to the place to which it seeks to journey.

(5.) That our true guidance and heip must come from the unseen and eternal. "The Call Promptly Heeded." (Verses 4-6.) "So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him; and Abram was seventy and five min; and Abrain was geventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

"And Abrain took Sarai his wife, and Lot, his brother's son, and all their substance they had gathered, and the souls they had gotten in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan; and into the land of Canaan they came.

"And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Shechem, unto the plain of Moreh. And the Canaanite was then in the land."

An interesting fact is that his father Tersh started with him and that they got as far as Haran, where they tarried several years till after Tersh's death, when they all journeyed on.

This obedience of Abram shows a great faith in God. Just how God communicated with him no one knows and no one need know. God has many ways of making known His will. Let us analyze his faith.

(1.) It was prompt, for he followed as the guiding hand led.

(2.) It was an influential faith, for he convinced his father and his nephew, Lot, a very wide-awake young man, that he was not going out into the dark. Mr. Carnegie's Neat Wit.

A contributor to London M. A. P. relates that he took dinner at Skibo Castle about two years ago, and the conversation drifted into the proposed "Anglo-Saxon Alliance" between America and Great Britain. Mrs. Carnegie and Sir Rennie Watson (the late chairman of the Glasgow and Southwestern Company) discussed the necessity of selecting a flower to be adopted as the bi-national emblem. Many flowers were mentioned, but Mr. Carnegie, who had been silent for some time, caused great amusement by suggesting the dandelion as the most suitable. He explained that the alliance of the American "dandy"—in the Eute. Yankee business sense of the word—with the British lion would result in a blossom that would rule the world.

BALTIMORE, July 26.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the advance in "Within ten days there has been called upon the name of the Lord. And Abram journeyed, going on still toward the south."

For the first time since Abram left his old home did God let him see what He would do with him. He now begins to fulfill His promises and thus confirms the faith of the trusting man. He gives him the land promised. Faith is reinforced by sight. It was in the first instance based on sufficient evidence; now it has more evidence. He further confirms his own faith by an act of wership. Offering living sacrifices had not wholly died out among men and no doubt Abram had seen them offered to false gods; he had perhaps even seen human sacrifices, for in Chaldea the first born was sometimes offered to propitiste the gods. Eut here he gets back to the first idea of sacrifice and performs the act which is both a confession of sin and a consecration of self to God. This act both shows Abram's faith and confirms it. His faith was carefully guarded and trained by God. The leaving of his own land was a strain upon it. The settlement here amid powerful enemies was a greater strain. Yet it was better that they be enemies than friends, for friends might more easily turn him back to idolatry. The appearing to him and holding converse with him was a greater help to his faith. Then God was with him in his final location between Bethel and Hai. The altar was built wherever Abram went. He kept his faith strong by expressing it.

"We believe this to be an auspictous time in which to make the effort to raise the funds for such a building without taxation, and in the event of the necessary funds being raised, the city should furnish the site for such building and library thereafter.

"We believe the foregoing states correctly the opinion of a large majority of the people of the city with respect to the duty of the city, and if it meets your views we would be pleased to have your honorable body so express itself.

"We believe that with the expressed purpose of the City Council to cooperate in the matter by furnishing a suitable site and appropriating snnually for the support and maintenance of the library a sum not less than the present annual appropriation for that purpose, that the funds can be secured for d building that will be an ornament to the city, and adequate to the needs of the library for years to come.

"The sum of $200,000 is thought to be the least that avill accomplish the turbance now caused by the noise of traffic on West First street.

Yesterday the petition was taken up by the Board of Public Works and it failed to meet with favor. It would surfaced since it was paved in 1889.

The Board of Police Commissioners will hold a special meeting Monday forenoon for the purpose of acting on demands for July salaries of members of the department. It is probable that other pending matters will be taken up at this time.

Equalizers Adjourn.

The City Council, sitting as a Board of Equalization, yesterday completed its work, after having listened to about thirty petitions, asking for a reduction of assessment. Despite the fact that the property valuation of the city was increased about $3,000,000 this year, the Board of Equalization heard fewer complaints than has any other such body for several years.

"Well, I have already said that we went to the Board of Supervisors and to the grand fury box in the County Clerk's office."

"Did you examine all the papers in the box?"

"No, sir."

"What papers?"

"Merely those that referred to Mr. Stein, for he was the only person whose candidacy we were asking the people to repudiate on account of his record.

"Now, Mr. Silent, did you have any ill-feeling or malice against Maj. Furrey personally in this matter?"

"Not the least in the world."

"Did you ever visit the City Republican Central Committee before publishing your report?"

"Yes, sir. We considered not publishing the report if Stein would withdraw his candidacy. Chairman Gates thought that Stein could not be forced to withdraw, as I did, too, from the standpoint of the law. It did not appear that Stein would volunteer to draw out. So the report was finally published."

"To whom was the Executive Committee's report finally submitted?"

"To the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty, and adopted without a dissenting vote." SAFETY COMMITTEE.

Devoid of Exciting Interest-Charles Silent, Esq., Cross-examined Very The feature of yesterday's pro-ceedings in the Furrey libel suit against the Committee of Safety was the positive testimony of Abbot Kin-ney for the defense. He states that the alleged libelous language used by the alleged libelous language used by the committee against Maj. Furrey was in fact contaffed in a report of the Education Committee of the grand guage, 'and two of them are dupli-cated, sworn to twice, approved twice and twice paid for.' Did you cross out these words from the report?" "No, sir," said Kinney. It is the contention of the plaintiff, that defendants were careless in copy-ing from the wrong report. Defend-ants intimate that someone outside the committee made the significant eras-ure.

"Were these words under the erasure a part of your report, Mr. Kinney?"
"They were a part of the report."
"Were these reports drawn by yourself, Mr. Kinney?"
"Yes, sir, I think they were both substantially in my language."
"Now, Mr. Kinney, were you ever called before the Committee of Safety to state your investigations on the grand jury in this matter?"
"Yes, sir, I was asked about Stein, and I stated that as far as he was concerned the proof against him was to my mind conclusive. I think there was nothing said about Maj. Furrey."

was nothing said about Maj. Furrey."
On cross-examination the attorneys for the plaintiff tried to establish that the two copies of the report of the sub-committee, in one of which the erasure occures, were carbon copies on the typewriter and that it was the-original that was presented to the jury, from which the erasure is made. Questions were also put to show that the grand jury found no indictment against the Furrey company, nor was any such suggestion ever made.

The trial of the case will be resumed today.

Ray Baron and Albert O'Brien created plenty of commotion for their respective sizes in court yesterday afternoon. Ikey is about three feet high, with a crop of hair that resembles a dirty string mop. Al is an inch tailer, with a shaved pate.

The brats are only 8 years old, but have caused a heap of trouble. They broke into a lunch wagon in Mott alley and demolished what they couldn't pack off. They were charged with violating the curfew ordinance, and stood before His Honor in tearful penitence. The mathers were in court, but did not respond until today. Then they rushed into the dock, and fell to weeping, while the little micks set up a how! that stopped all business in the court.

The justice ordered them taken below, and officers picked them up and carried them screaming from the room. The mothers did not like the separation, and when outside tried to pull the youngsters away from the officers. The latter won out in a short tug-of-war, and the Mrs. Baron went into hysterics. She was quieted in a few minutes, and the kids' fate will be decided this morning.

Police After Slasher.

Marie Clement, the French prostitute who slashed a rival's face with a glass goblet in a fight over a man, was arraigned on a battery charge. It was found that Marguerite Martin, the injured woman, has refused to swear to a complaint against her assaliant, and so Marie was remanded to jail until the matter could be investigated.

The "macs" have persuaded the victim not to prosecute, but the arresting officers are willing to swear to a complaint. The officers were refused a complaint by the deputy district attorney, but are determined to push the case. The accused woman freely admitted the assault at the time of her arrest, and the police do not like the disposition of the deputy district attorney to obstruct the prosecution of a known offender.

BULLDOZER

Tries it on Plasterer. but is Defied.

His Big "Bouncer" Gets Bodily Bounced.

Jim Gets Many Fines on Paper but the Union Loses Through Him.

Buildozer Jim Gray, the walking delegate, the Weary Willie of the workless workers, has once more shown the length of his ears. The way the length of his ears. The way ne imposed imposing fines that were never paid would do credit to the playful manner in which the Mikado ordered "heads off."

Elmer Spangler, Sr., and Elmer, Spangler, Jr., lath and plaster ontractors, were running two jobs, and in addition to the two crews of men.

in addition to the two crews of men, each Mr. Spangler was making a hand himself on the job he was overseeing. Mischief-maker Gray, learning this fact, went to the Spangiers and demanded that they quit work on their own jobs, because the union says no boss shall make a hand. Delegate Gray was politely notified that he could depart to that hotter place than the Arisona desert. Gray ordered a fine of $20 each recorded against them in the union, and directed all their nne of $20 each recorded against them in the union, and directed all their hands to stop work. The result was that the Spanglers and all their men quit the union and continued to work, and the latter volunteered to help throw

Gray out if he should appear again.

The Spanglers next had a sub-contract to plaster a house on West Adams street. When they appeared on the ground with a crew of non-union men, to start the work, the nonunion men, to start the work, the non-industrious walking delegate was on hand and ordered them to leave the job, which they refused to do. Gray then called out the union carpenters, and Contractor Blair, in order to save himself, agreed to pay the Span-glers $75 to give up the plastering contract.

The Spanglers now went to their next job on a row of flats, on Ninth street. Gray trailed their foctsteps and said they should not work, but they did, all the same, and had applications from more men than they could use. When Gray appeared there to make trouble, Contractor Shaffell ordered him off the premises, and Gray in turn tried to call out the union men, but they wouldn't answer to his whistle.

in turn tried to call out the union men, but they wouldn't answer to his whistle.

"Ah, ha! Oh, ho!" said delegate Gray. And he entered up a fine of $10 against every union man—all except one. That one was J. E. Nelson, foreman for Contractor Shaffell. This is the way it happened that foreman Nelson was put down, in cold figures, to enrich the union treasury by $25. Gray looked wise and went off, but returned shortly with his "bouncer," said to be an ex-puglilat. The latter undertook an argument with the foreman with the result that Nelson picked him up by the nape of the neck and the nether part of his jumpers, and threw him bodily out of the building.

and the nether part of his jumpers, and threw him bodily out of the building.

Not a man quit work on the job, but the whole outfit quit the union. Gray appeared once more, but Contractor Shaffell threatened him with a vigorous application of boot, and the walking delegate departed on the run.

Mr. Nelson says: "I expect some trouble. I have a contract to build a house as soon as this job is done, and I suppose Gray and his gang are laying for me, but I am used to it. Fourteen years ago they tried to run me off a job. Nine men came at me at once, but I had two guns and they only came to the gate. They said I would get out of town soon, but I am here yet, and I intend to stay. I joined the union by request of a large contractor who wanted me to work for him. They attempted to run me and my affairs, fined me, and I quit; but that is nothing. Almost invariably every union man that comes in contact with the walking delegate gets fined for minding his own business, and if he has any sand, he as invariably quits the union.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS.

M. Pasteur, of France, invented a process for killing all possible germs in a product, and we use it. After each bottle of Schlitz beer is filled and sealed it is sterilized.

This is an extreme precaution. The beer is brewed in extreme cleanliness, cooled in filtered air, then filtered. It seems impossible for a taint of impurity to get to it. Yet we sterilize every bottle.

We, who know brewing, know the value of purity. We add vastly to the necessary cost of our beer to assure it. You who drink it get the healthful results of our precaution. Your physician knows; ask him.

T. Foo Yuen's Return From China, New Remedies of Great Value

T. Foo Yuen, the well known president of the Foo & Wing Herb Company, has recently returned from an extended visit to China, where he has been a resident for a year past and engaged in perfecting certain business plans in the interest of the company. He is now receiving his former friends and patrons, and many new ones, at his residence in this city, 903 South Clive street, which is also the principal place of business of the company.

This representative Oriental scholar has improved his recent residence in China to the utmost in the preparation of some new and exceedingly valuable remedies after the most approved formulas of Oriental physicians.

He returns with a complete line of proprietary remedies manufactured by this company, which are adapted to the relief and cure of almost every conceivable ill that afflicts humanity.

Among the best of these remedies are specifics for the cure of all forms of malaria poisoning, which is everywhere prevalent and results in a greater variety of aliments than the average person understands. Rheumatism, neuralgia, dropsy, affection of the liver and other vital organs are directly traceable to malaria, though the source of these is often overlooked and hidden in the diversity of names under which many dactors conceal maladies that have a common origin. The Chinese have remedies of this class so potent they will even cure the dreeded plague, which is strictly a disorder of malarial origin. Fortunately, America is not visited by the plague, but the same agents in milder form, which will counteract the germs of yellow fever and the plague, will cure scores of other diseases which many be less swift in their destructive course, yet no less deadly in their final even. Often the difference is merely a matter of time, although in the milder forms of malaria poisoning this is in the sufferar's favor, because it gives an opportunity for remedial agents to accomplish a cure.

This company's remedies are as complete in other lines as in this one or sufferar's favor, because it gives an opportunity for remedial agents to accomplish a cure.

This company's remedies are as complete in other lines as in this one or malaria. Composed of purely herbal agents, without a trace of mineral of other poisons, these great remedies purify the blood, give tone and vigor to the nervous system, build up the tissues of the body and recuperate the strength. Aided by a pain and simple averem of diet and careful observance of the law of health, they cure maladies of long stapding which have baffied all other means of relief. This company invites an investigation of its imperial remedies by every person whose health is impaired and whose life is thereby rendered devoid of enjoyment and usefalness.

The hundreds of people who have found relief in the past from these splendid specifics are living and willing witnesses to their potency in the cure of disease. Some of these persons can be seen by inquirers. The testimonfals of others are on file. Every opportunity is given to ascertain the facts. American attendants grant every courtesy and give complete information. Printed matter on request.

When near the latter place he had encountered a detachment of American troops belonging to that station and two of his detachment had been either killed or captured. Upon arrival at Pantabangan he reported to the local presidente, or sicalde, who had formerly acted in such capacity for the insurgents, in order that he might be facilitated on his journey. This man told him that he was now acting with the Americans, and advised him to present himself to Lieut. Taylor, giving up his correspondence. This the man did at once. Lieut. In reply he was instructed to send the man and captured letters with all possible maste to these headquarters.

Upon arrival I questioned the man horoughly, and he did not vary from als original story.

Among the correspondence given up by this man were about twenty letters from Aguinaldo or some of the officers with him to insurgents in various parts of Aguinaldo's escort to their friends.

This privation was telling on many, some twenty of the Macabebes being so weak that, without food, they would be unable to continue the march to Palanan, a distance of only eight miles. I discussed the situation with Segovia and had the latter prepare a letter to forward to Aguinaldo, acknowledging receipt of his orders to leave the prisoners with a guard at this point. The letter stated that the instructions would be compiled with, and continued by requesting that food be at once sent to us in order that the march could be resumed. This message was sent to Palanan by a Baluga, During the night we American officers held a secret conference and arranged a labor to avoid correlates with the care

As particular stress has been laid on the corn-crop damage in Kansas, it is worth noting that that State stood fifth in the list of corn producers in 1900, as proved by the following table:

in following States: Florida, 16.5 per cent.; Virginia, 16.5 per cent.; Texas, 14.9 per cent.; Tennessee, 14.1 per cent.; Georgia, 13.9 per cent.; South Carolina, 11.7 per cent.; West Virginia, 11.6 per cent.; Arisona, 10.6 per cent.; Alabam, 10.6 per cent.; Alabam, 10.6 per cent. The population of the District of Columbia is classed as urban. The figures here referred to are indicative of the persistence of a tendency which has been remarked upon before. Evidently the drift of population toward the cities is a constant one, or, at least, one the limits to which are not yet in sight.

The United States volunteer weather seer in Rediands is an optimistic party with an abnormally enlarged reach into the future and a death grip on the present. He figures that there is less water in the air here than anywhere else, in fact only 24 per cent., and thereby puts the official seal on a fact that several people have suspected for some time: i.e., that any one going outdoors at high noon expecting to get a shower bath is likely to get a lasting disappointment. However, there are statistics on file to show that more water can be wrung out of the Redlands handkerchief about midday than anywhere, except San Bernardino, Aden, Phoenix and Eblis. The thermometer registered 108 deg, today.

Replying to a question put by Supervisor Shaver, he admitted he could not say what percentage of the voters signed the petitions, Mr. Morse said, he appeared as the representa-tive of a committee that does not their the lead under consideration is per cent. of the voters, and he asked that action be deferred a week in order that he might complete the canvass for signatures. He thought the Everest property offer was a good one.

A. A. Adair, Esq., asked that action be postponed. He thought the peeple had a right to be heard and affirmed that the law requires that such questions shall be submitted to the people. Supervisor Shaver moved that action be deferred until the next regular meeting of the board. His motion was not seconded. Supervisor Dunbar introduced a resolution accepting the proposition of P. T. Evans to sell to the county block 10, range 6, city of Riverside, for $20,000. The motion was seconded by Supervisor Craven. When put to a vote, Lilly, Kimbell, Craven and Dunbar voted yes; Shaver voted no. A warrant for $20,000 was ordered drawn in favor of Mr. Evans, who turned over a deed.

At 10:30 o'clock, the hour fixed for opening bids for building a County Jail at a cost approximating $35,000, Mr. Craven stated that on account of a legal technicality, the opening would have to be deferred. It seems that detail drawings, which must be filed with the plans, contract and other papers, were lacking. The five bids that had been submitted were ordered returned unopened. Later in the day, detail drawings were adopted and new bids will be advertised for.

Roberts was arrested yesterday at the County Hospital by a detective and was positively identified last night by Mr. Sanborn as the burglar he shot.

About 2 o'clock Wednesday morning Mr. Sanborn, who lives at No. 419 East Fourth street, was awakened by a noise at the front of his house. Getting out of bed, he took his pistol, wert into the front room and, peering through the darkness, he was surprised to see a man working at his front window. With a howl of pain the scamp withdrew his arm and ran out to the street, twenty feet from the house. He evidently saw someone coming, probably a milkman, for he turned toward the house again. Not exactly desiring his company, Sanborn took another shot, and then the fellow skipped for good. Sanborn reported to the police on Wednesday and detectives were sent out on the case, Sanborn declaring that he had shot the burglar in the left arm. pistol wound in the left arm, saying he had been shot over trouble about a woman.

The officer lost no time in taking the wounded man to the Police Station. Last night-Sanborn went there and positively identified him.

Roberts is about 45 years old, with a thin brown mustache and gray eyes. He is a crook without doubt, and was mixed up in a burglary at Milleville, Mo., last year. He was arrested there and released on bail, which he promptly jumped and left the country. This much he has admitted, but denies any knowledge of the Sanborn affair.

In speaking of his wound last night he said that last Tuesday night about 10 o'clock he was walking along Sixth street with a woman he did not know, but had caught up with on the street. At Sixth and Flower streets she left him standing on the corner.

A few moments later a tail young man came along and without saying a word drew a pistol and shot Roberts in the left arm. He thought this was rather strange, but nevertheless went to his room on East Second street and retired, not seeking, medical aid or even informing the police, because he said they could not find his assailant, any way.

COVINA, July 26.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Today has been a gala day for Covina, the occa-sion being the holding of a University of the University of California. From and the attendance at the opening ses-sion exceeded the most sanguine ex-

The morning session opened punctually at 10 o'clock in Independence Hall, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion by a committee consisting of Messrs. C. E. Bemis, E. G. Clapp and Walter Wheeler.

The first number on the programme

The first number on the programme was a 'cello solo by Paul Jennison. This was followed by the invocation by Rev. S. H. Enyeart. The address of welcome pastor of the Christian Church, who in a happy manner, on behalf of the citizens of this prospective city, extended a warm welcome to the large gathering of visitors. A brief but appropriate response was made by Prof. A. J. Cook, who took occasion to urge upon the ranchers of Covina the organization of a local farmers club.

J. W. Jeffrey, secretary of the Horticultural Commission of the county, read an interesting paper on the work which was already done by the members of this board, and asked that their hands might be upheld and the usefulness of their work extended by the earnest coöperation of the individual ranchers in their work. This was followed by a paper on fumigation, prepared by W. R. Lowry and read by Prof. J. J. Morgan.

Photographs were exhibited illustrating the results obtained by fumigation and spraying. The pictures showed the orchards of W. F. Stearns of National City, manufacturer of the X-Ray Distillate, the trees being practically bare, the result of spraying; another picture, of an orchard within 100 yards of the first, which had been fumigated, showed a luxuriant foliage and growth. This paper, produced considerable discussion as to the advisability of daylight or night fumigation. Mr. Lowry claimed that fumigation should be done at night, as daylight has a disturbing effect upon the chemical combinations and interferes to zome extent with the results. On the other hand, F. M. Chapman, who owns an eightyeacre orange grove in Covina, claims that he can secure as good, if not better, results by daylight fumigation.

F. M. Chapman delivered an address on Irrigation, confining his remarks mostly to sub-irrigation. About eighteen months ago he installed a sub-irrigation plant on ten acres of his large ranch, which to date has proved eminently satisfactory, resulting in a saving of nearly 75 per cent. of water over surface irrigation.
